SUPPORTING THE LION HAND UNIT, MALAWI

Tonight's performance supports the incredible work of the Lilongwe Institute for Orthopaedics and Neurosurgery (LION) Hand Unit in Malawi.

Noswaith dda!

I'm your host for tonight:

Ms. Lucy Lee-Smith
Trauma & Orthopaedics

Established by the British Society for Surgery of the Hand (BSSH) in 2015, this centre provides vital, life-changing reconstructive surgery for thousands of people suffering from severe hand injuries, infections and congenital conditions. In a country of over 19 million people with extremely limited surgical resources, the LION Unit is a beacon of hope.

It is not just a clinic; it is a sustainable project, providing specialist training to surgeons and therapists from Malawi and the whole region.

Your support tonight will directly fund essential surgical equipment, rehabilitation services, and the training of future local experts.

Thank you!

Hands that speak: Tonight's Pianists

Prash is a council member for the British Society for Surgery of the Hand. He was appointed as Consultant Hand and Orthopaedic surgeon at Ysbyty Gwynedd in 2011. He is a graduate of King David High School in Liverpool and the Manchester School of Medicine.

His musical journey at the piano began at eight years of age under the tutelage of the late Dennis Rattle, father of the renowned conductor Sir Simon Rattle. Prash competed and performed regularly in his teenage years but took a break from the piano for decades as he trained to be a surgeon. He currently volunteers as an organist at St Joseph's Catholic Church in Colwyn Bay.

Tonight will be his first recital in 31 years!..

Orthopaedic surgeon Carlvan Lee was born in Sabah, Malaysia and now practices in North Wales. Having graduated medicine from the International Medical University, Malaysia at the age of 21, he was one of the youngest medical graduates ever.

His musical gifts emerged equally early; under the tutelage of Krzysztof Slomiac and Helen Barker, he was awarded a Fellowship from Trinity College London in Piano Performance at the age of 14. He has won numerous prizes in national competitions for piano and singing in his teenage years.

After a dedicated decade-long focus on his medical career, he is now delightedly returning to the piano...
